Joomla CMS This is a new look to our 15-year-old website. It will allow you to comment on my postings , to which I will respond, and receive email updates (likely no more than one a month). It's based on the free Content Management System called Joomla!

But, in order to use these features, you'll need to create an account. Your email address will not be sold to or shared with any others. Let's keep the solar discussion rolling.

Importing the previous site's material will take some time, so in the meantime, you can see that material by going here . Lots of good material.
